Tags: ghost unrar that runs our DR site, only supports Ghost forms of deployment ie GhostCast, not ImageX.. You can deploy to a machine and then capture that with Ghost or create a portable. Stress testing of SQL Server Analysis Services tabular model. How to restore a user account from a portable hard disk on Windows Server 2003 and XP? I have the user's profile and a bunch of content I had previously on it. I am a Windows Admin and a pretty novice user of Linux. This was my first time setting a user account back in a Linux. I went through a number of problems including getting into Windows to restore the user profile. More interesting thing is I do not have the original user profiles from which I restored the account. I have only the actual user account settings as well as the user accounts. Can anyone give a brief/cut and dry way to restore/copy all the user settings (desktop wallpaper etc.)?

Also am I correct in my understanding that it is limited to how much information has been copied over to the source? In this case it's the live user account settings, not any cached information from the disk that I pulled the user profile from? Hi naveen_megam, I do not think that I can answer your question because I am not very familiar with Linux. But I am sure somebody will be able to. I hope that answers some of your questions. Naveen Awesome thanks, great info! I think the profiles are actually stored on the FS or if I'm understanding the articles, the OS may have access to these profiles, so the OS would have the decryption key and could just use the decryption key to access the profiles? That I do not know. I think that it is not stored in the FS but I am not sure. It is what you see on the desktop I think. Awesome thanks, great info! That is true but I think a crucial point is that the profile information is hidden deep in the filesystem
