ALBANY – The New York State Senate has overwhelmingly passed a bill to raise the minimum age of criminal responsibility to 18 from 16. The measure had already passed the Assembly with vote of 59-2 on Dec. 14. It was signed by the governor last week. Lawmakers from both parties said the bill is a necessary part of curbing gun violence, and state Sen. Cecilia Tkaczyk, D-Duanesburg, said other states have taken similar action. “This isn’t about the 16-year-old,” Tkaczyk said. “This isn’t about profiling. This is about saving lives. We have a gunshot epidemic in New York State. We know that between the ages of 14 to 17, we have the highest rates of gun violence in the nation.” Tkaczyk’s bill would make it illegal to possess a firearm, even a registered one, between the ages of 16 and 18. The current law says it is illegal to “sell, deliver, give, lend or otherwise dispose of a loaded firearm or any ammunition” to anyone under 18. “There’s no reason to keep young people from possessing firearms,” said Assemblywoman Pam Helming, R-Palmyra, who voted for the bill. “I don’t think we should be making adults out of kids under 18. I just think it’s common sense.” Assemblyman Andy Goodell, R-Cooperstown, was the only legislator to vote against the measure, saying it could deprive police of needed training. “Under the current law, a 16-year-old commits a felony when he or she sells a firearm to an adult who is over 18, but, as you may be aware, we have a very high violent crime rate in the state of New York, and if we want to deal with this problem, we have to prevent these illegal acts,” Goodell said. “But I think we’re going to take away the ability for people

Join the Viking lords of Sweden as you play as a Scandinavian superpower with a unique cultural and musical experience. In this new expansion for the acclaimed strategy game

Europa Universalis 4, the Seven Kingdoms of Scandinavia are united as the Kingdom of Sweden in the late 18th Century. This in turn is ruled by King Gustav III, the first of a new family of rulers, who strives to turn Sweden into a world superpower. The expansion includes a new culture and new challenges as well as new musical traditions. In addition, you have the opportunity to try out new units, provinces and campaigns. The musical tradition and culture of Sweden have been included from the late 18th Century to the early 20th Century. The new music is adapted to the Swedish culture, and the 16 new songs depict the Swedes' life and experiences in a culture that was completely different from their own. The rich musical heritage of Sweden is hereby perfectly merged with the era of the Swedish 18th Century.

Permanent Touring Lessons I'm a big travel bug. I've never met a place I didn't want to see and I go back to visit almost every year. In my opinion, there is no better way to travel than by bicycle. So, when I thought about doing an hour long beginner's tour, I jumped at the chance. So far I've spent a week in Peru, and I've already learned so much. I especially love that I can stop and go anywhere I want, whenever I want. If I see something I want to photograph, I just ride into town. If I want a nice, leisurely ride, I head for a nice lake or mountain road. I can also get around town a bit quicker than on foot, so I can get places faster. On most days I ride by at least one farm or field, and even in the city, I've seen a few cows and chickens. I've spent a lot of time in coffee shops and on the beach. But most of all, I've gotten to discover a new country. I'm more of a mountain biker, but since I was getting lots of exercise, I decided to give the touring lesson a try. It was by far the best decision I've made lately. After one lesson, I knew how to handle a bike better and to ride with a lot more confidence. But what reviews How did I get to be a regular on Gamezebo? It's something that takes ages to explain, and usually lies in the fact that it's the one logical conclusion to the game industry being built on an enormous heap of garbage. But if I'm going to keep writing reviews on these dull-as-toilets titles, it's best if I try and at least give them as much credit as they deserve, so that the readership gets to know what I've felt for the latest, and not just be reading my biased opinion, whereas in the case of most review sites I'd be a mouthpiece for the company sponsoring the game. But I'm certainly not telling you what you should think (a few average reviews are fine). I'm sharing my experiences, and how I think and feel, instead. A South African woman has a browser addiction, yet likes books, as well as having an opinion about books from there. I'll perhaps leave it at that, and just share my thoughts and feelings through reviews.

Europa Universalis IV

Europa Universalis IV has the most splendid interface I have ever seen in a Paradox game. You can switch between the Game Menu and the Sid Meier icon overlay, and you can switch between the two views at any time, without being limited to one for the whole game. Two additional switching options are "Assemble Map" and "Dominions, Battles and Ambitions." This is all incredibly helpful, if you're unfamiliar with Euro-games, because they often allow you to carry on without being aware of certain large-scale issues of your nation. Half the fun of Euro-games is the large-scale decisions you make, and by allowing you to switch between the views and however often you want, it removes the need to keep everything in your head. This is all incredibly helpful, if you're unfamiliar with Euro-games, because they often allow you to carry on without being aware of certain large-scale issues of your nation Also, the threading in the menus is ridiculously better than before, so navigating around a large map like Portugal has never been easier. The Stats, Grand Strategies and Histories tabs have a neat feature, whereby you select an option from a dropdown menu, and it will pop up the option options for you to choose from. So if you want to write a history for a nation, you have all the options ticked off, while you completely ignore the
