This technology allows for an authentic, free-flowing, natural movement system that further enhances the player's true emotions and agility. "Real Player Motion," another new technology introduced in FIFA 22, collects actual player movement data and then uses its knowledge of player movement and the soccer pitch to recreate their speed, acceleration and reactions. Real Player Motion has been combined with user-defined variables to provide the player with extra speed, agility, balance and explosiveness. Players can change the parameters on the fly to find out what feels most realistic or comfortable. Thymoquinone (TQ) is the major constituent of the volatile oil of black seed. It is used in the treatment of several diseases including cancer. The role of TQ in cancer was investigated by using MDA-MB-231 human breast cancer cell line, which is highly invasive and metastatic in nature. It was found that TQ inhibited the viability, motility and migration of MDA-MB-231 cells. This was observed in a dose-dependent manner, with an IC50 value of 100 µM. Furthermore, TQ inhibited the expression of MMP-9 and VEGF in MDA-MB-231 cells. TQ significantly inhibited both MMP-9 protein expression (IC50 = 10 µM) and activity (IC50 = 5 µM) and also protein expression and activity of VEGF (IC50 = 15 µM). TQ induced a decrease in expression of phosphorylated Akt in MDA-MB-231 cells, which suggests that Akt is involved in the TQ-induced inhibition of migration of MDA-MB-231 cells. Moreover, the expression of ERK1/2 and its phosphorylation was induced by TQ. This inhibition of migration is likely due to a decrease in both the phosphorylation of MAPK and ERK proteins. The decrease in MAPK and ERK proteins expression might be a consequence of an inhibition of
