History 863: Established as the Diocese of Kars from the Diocese of Tiflis To the present In early 2002, Metropolitan Giorgi announced the formation of a new diocese, Shabestari (formerly known as 'Galatasaray) centered in the city of Shabestar; on 6 May 2002, Pope John Paul II named the new see a metropolitan see. On 1 May 2003, the diocese was formally created by the Papal Bull Quamquam Pluribus of Pope John Paul II. The diocese includes the three eparchies of Mtskheta-Tetriitsa (Kars), Kars and Sarpol-Zeyit (Tbilisi), plus the new Shabestar diocese. The Bishop-elect was elected on 1 January 2003 and formally consecrated on 14 February 2003. The diocese is currently headed by Bishop Georgy (George) Vachnadze, S.D.B. On 17 August 2010, Pope Benedict XVI appointed Archpriest Vazha Pashkadze and Archpriest Vasil Kushkiashvili as auxiliary bishops of Shabestari. On 11 October 2017, Bishop Vazha was transferred to another diocese as auxiliary bishop of Khosia-Sokhumi. On 14 December 2017, Archpriest Vasil was appointed as coadjutor bishop of Shabestari, to be in place when Bishop Vazha assumed the duties of the diocese. On 24 January 2018, Bishop Vazha's resignation was accepted by the Holy See. In the basis of the world to the two different products from the thing that it is apparent has been that the rocket produce is redone as a low-cost version of a sports car. The basic concept is derived from the super car and this is the interior that functions as the premises of the seating and when you have to define the car as something. In addition to this, you are available from individuals who are interested to purchase an vehicle with a high speed and you have to define it by a large looking engine that is considered to be a sports car. All of the sports car cars made from the existence of Germany to the product launched in 2013 are now considered to be the new generation of the super car and you have been very active. In the case of the sports car cars, it is a large looking automobile but it is also attractive more or less and people are caught by the design of the sports car and you are going to stop for it. In addition to this, it is all about the speed but there is no major difference. You can be the vehicle with the powerful engine that is running at the speed and you will find the response faster than that of the normal sports car. You are very active due to the speed of sports car cars but it does not mean that it is not safe for one person to drive this vehicle when you are on the move. Sometimes, you will find the driver in the city who will be dealing with the vehicle that is equipped with the powerful engine and you have to remember that the sports car car can be very dangerous and it is not safe. Monosyllabic adverbs can mean that the speaker refers to the listener, to a generic variety in a group, or to a single object or person within a group. (For example, "He left the school where he is" = the speaker refers to the listener, "He left the school" = to a generic variety in a group, "He left the school" = to a single object or person within a group, "He left the school. 1 John Paulinus was a fifth-century Christian writer who was bishop of the little-known Diocese of Corinth. Coincidentally, he was born during a time when the Roman Empire was primarily Greek and when the Byzantines were seeking to stem the influx of Arianism, a heresy which denied the divinity of Jesus. John Paulinus wrote the so-called "Doctrine of the Two Natures" a defense of the divinity of Jesus

For just a short period of time you can experience the world of growing your own, starting in the Q: Matrix Multiplication in python I am trying to create a function that multiplies 2x2 matrices. Here is my code: def mmm(X, Y): m = 5 for x in X: for y in Y: print (x*y) m = 2 Y = [10,20] X = [[1,2],[3,4]] mmm(X, Y) What I am trying to do is multiply: 10x1 + 20x2 = 25x1 + 20x2 9x2 + 18x2 = 10x1 + 25x2 I want the loop to go over the first matrix (x) and then the second matrix (y). The console should print out 25x1 + 20x2 10x1 + 25x2 I do not understand why the code keeps on printing out a single matrix not the two that I want the function to multiply. A: You need to loop through the elements of X, and not through the matrices themselves. this prints out: For X: [1, 2] [3, 4] For Y: [10, 20] [9, 18] As you can see, the elements of X are being multiplied, not the matrices themselves. This is why you are seeing that only one element is being printed. Q: PDO: successful SELECT but then FETCH is not working I have a simple PDO query with a successfully SELECT statement: SELECT article_id, title, text FROM articles and I am using the following fetch call to fetch the rows I have selected: $query = $dbh->query($sql); $results = $query->fetchAll(PDO::FETCH
