Ashampoo WinOptimizer 2012 Pro 2013 2014. Not too long ago, former Lions receiver Calvin Johnson agreed to a record contract to return to his former team in Detroit. This got us thinking. Are there any NFL players who could leave for that potential league salary?

One of the major criticisms of the NFL is its salary cap structure, which doesn't permit a team to pay players what they're worth. In reality, NFL teams are capped, which is why players sign for deals like $17.5 million and $56 million in guaranteed money. Salaries in the NFL are only about 70 percent of what they would be in the NBA, which is about 83 percent, according to USA Today. One way that teams try to get around the salary cap is by letting players earn a portion of their salary in endorsements. This was first popularized in the NBA and is still used today by some NFL players. We took a look at players who could become unrestricted free agents in 2018 or 2019, using statistics from the past three years. (For more on the salary cap, read these two posts from this week: Average salaries for players with their initials how much do NFL players make per week? Unfortunately, we just don't have any players on the list worth more than $7 million guaranteed, which is close to where the salary cap would be for the 2019 season. Yet, many NFL players could be making close to that amount. For example, here are five players who have had more than 50 receiving touchdowns over the past three years: Player Team Rec.
