Well I can tell you I've never been happier to be home." That was pastor Barry McGarvey's message to the congregation of the St. Johns Baptist Church Tuesday morning. The pastor preached out of Luke 6:27, "Behold, what manner of people the goodness of God towards man." On Sunday he told the congregation the message was tied to the way Jesus spoke of the many: The poor and the sick, the blind and the needy. "What He said was, 'He's the greatest of them all because He cares for all of them.'" Earlier in the meeting, members of the church's youth group were given a chance to make a commitment of their own. Sarah Berry-Kramer, 17, has been part of the Church since she was nine years old. "We do a lot of community outreach and do a lot of internships with the local homeless," she said. She wants to be a doctor, but for now she has her sights set on nursing school. "There were a couple of students there and I was asking them what they were doing and they said, 'Oh we're interning at a local homeless shelter.'...We both said, 'We're going to do that.'" The students signed up for four-month stints, and did a lot of the actual work at the St. Johns Mission Center. The youth group said there are more than 100 local people who are homeless, and they have a lot to do. "There's so much love in the community that we are a part of and we just need to go out and show some of that love," Sarah said. On Tuesday morning, McGarvey said the church has two missions: making sure there are good people in the community and taking care of the homeless. "God's goodness is still here, we don't have to hide it," he said. The next youth group meeting is June 18 from 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m

You are a young girl named Eika. You were on a school trip in the countryside. The trip has been scheduled by your class teacher, because of the research materials. During the trip, a part of the science experiment is locked. You, the only one there, are free from this nightmare. You were playing piano with the other girls while your friends are playing another game. The girls and the science teacher were going around another part of the room to check on the experiment. But suddenly a loud noise was heard. The science teacher shouted that there are students dead. It turns out that the teacher and the girls didn't lock the door and left. The girls and the teacher were inside. You and the other girls were at the other side. There are an axe, a drill, and a sheet of cloth nearby. The other girls and the teacher were murdered because they were somehow tied to the sheet. You have to escape from here and find the way back to the school. During the course of the journey, you will have to explore the surrounding areas of the school and collect more information. Collectibles PuzzleGame ModesClues Like, Recommended for, Young adultNot for young girlsThere are no descriptions on the video.It is about a missing teenager during a school trip. The play is pretty simple but it is very immersive. If you are a fan of survival horror then you will like this. I would rate this game on a 7-10 scale. This game is for the horror lovers. You have to survive this game. You can play on PC, XBOX, or Playstation. I can't wait to play this game. I think it is a fantastic game. So good luck. Also the game is kind of long, and a little hard. I would say it is the hardest game on here. I'm giving this a 9. Corpse Party: Book of Shadows is a horror adventure game developed by MAGES. (formerly 5pb. Games) and published under the supervision of the original series creators at Team GrisGris. Corpse Party: Book of Shadows builds upon the events of the first game, exploring or re-exploring past incidents, characters, and points of view, and allowing the player to escape many of the deaths that occurred previously, thus steering them toward all-new (albeit not necessarily better) outcomes.This PC version updates the original PSP system versions art to HD and adds full mouse support for authentic point-and-click gameplay, providing the definitive Corpse Party:
