Q: Designed forms don't pass application to step file I have written a form using the form designer in Visual Studio 2013. It works fine, but when I use it as a test, I want to run it as a step by.vstp file. Visual Studio 2013 uses the configured language to translate the step file to vb.net for me. I use the XML source attribute to set the language and schema in the form. When run via step file, the form appears correctly, as expected. However, it does not appear correctly in the step file, and this generates a null reference exception. I can't get a reference to the form in the step file. I have put a debug point on the first line, and it has a breakpoint. It goes to the next line, but then the next line has the breakpoint on it and says "debug point hit step file: Test [page:0].vstp This is an annoying problem, and I can't find a solution. The forms have two ComboBoxes on them. One for country, and one for currency. The code for this is:
