I don't understand either, see a picture of the game below. I've tried to re-compile the game as they did when publishing the game on Steam, but I'm getting a lot of problems. I've tried to re-install the game from Steam but it says that the game is not authorized. A: So there's a couple of issues here. First off, I don't think you can run LUA on Windows unless you have Cygwin or something, so that's not working. Secondly, you might have been mislead by the description of the game. It says "The MOD" and "Stick War Modification" on the product page, but none of the assets appear to be mods. You can see in the photo here that all the files have "stickwar.mp4" in their file names, which will tell you the game is just the official stickwar game. If you go to their page for their other game "Stick Wars: Battle of the Atomic Submarines", it does contain mods as well (that are not from BI). If you want to run a modded version of stickwar, you might be able to get it to run with SteamPlay (it's a "native support" mod). You'll also have to change stickwar.ini to use your own launcher, as you won't be able to use SteamPlay with BI's own launcher. If you want to run the official version, then you need to find a LUA development environment. Cygwin or Wine may work depending on how well it's integrated with your system, though I don't have any experience with Wine. Q: Connecting to MySQL server using IP address I tried connecting to MySQL server using IP address in Windows 7. I specified the default port (3306) i.e. jdbc:mysql://192.168.1.2:3306/ Unfortunately it did not work. However, if I specify the port to 3307, it worked properly. i.e. jdbc:mysql://192.168.1.2:3307/ Does this make any sense? I know the port is correct as I tested it with XAMPP on port 3307. A: You can not open port 3306 on Windows. This port is used for MySQL Workbench and you must be have some kind
