Basic image editing is a must if you want to use Photoshop well. Photoshop has many features — some useful, some less so — so which features do you really need? Here are five features that are generally important to know about. You can edit shapes with the marquee tools, but you have to have a solid understanding of shapes before you can use this feature. See the sidebar "Drawing shapes". When it comes to sophisticated special effects, the smart object system is unmatched. You can create and manipulate objects that live in their own layer set and can even have image editing capabilities if you want. See the sidebar "Combining images using layers". Photoshop enables you to duplicate a group of layers. For good results, always use a reference photo to determine what layer grouping best enhances a photo. After that, start moving layers around. Simply dragging an entire layer group handles where that layer moves in the layer hierarchy. The Photoshop Content-Aware feature looks at the entire image and analyzes it to see whether it contains any identifiable objects. If you were photographing kids at a party, you'd want this feature turned on to automatically remove the child from the background and crop the image to focus only on the children and the adult in the foreground. ## Making Adjustments After you've imported an image, you start making the most of that image with a basic adjustment layer. An adjustment layer provides a specific way to make an adjustment to the pixels of an image. In Photoshop, a _basic adjustment layer_ is simply a way to make a visible adjustment in an image. If you don't see any adjustment layers, click the Layer Dropdown menu in the Layers panel and choose Layer 1 from the menu. You can make the most of your images by starting to adjust them in one of the ways provided by Photoshop. The adjustment tools discussed in this section vary from other image editors in that they have the ability to work at any type of image. They work in different ways, but don't expect to use them to create special effects or create fine arts. To create special effects, the smart object system works much better than these tools. The adjustment layers in Photoshop provide nine basic types of tools that allow you to make adjustments to the color, saturation, contrast, exposure, light, and dark areas of an image. This list of tools is by no means complete — there are more adjustment types than what's provided here, and Photoshop offers a type of

Elite League (Northern Ireland) The Elite League or Northern Ireland Elite League is a summer professional basketball league in Northern Ireland. Teams play a regular season from mid-July to early October. The top two teams in the regular season advance to the National League. The National League is then split into two semi-finals and a final, with the team who wins the National League becoming the Irish Elite League Champions. There are currently two divisions, the Premier Division and Division One. Teams There are currently four teams in the Elite League that compete on a weekly basis. The original team, Belfast Giants were the champions in the inaugural 2011/2012 season. Since then, Ballymena Crescents have been league champions. Pre-season The teams play four pre-season games prior to the start of the regular season. These are in a double round-robin format, with the first place teams winning four games and the second place teams winning three. The pre-season schedule for the Elite League is as follows: Regular season The regular season comprises forty games with each team playing the other team at home once. If teams are level at the end of the regular season, a playoff takes place, with the winners of the two semi-finals facing the winners of the regular season between the first and second placed teams in the National League. In the event of a 2-2 tie, extra time, not a shootout will be used, instead of a tiebreaker. If teams are still level after the regular season, a playoff takes place, with the winners of the two third place teams facing each other to complete the league. This system has worked well for the Elite League, with the top two teams in the national league finishing on the same points after the regular season. Playoffs At the conclusion of the regular season, the top two teams in each division qualify for the semi finals. The first place team from the Elite League plays the first place team in the National League, and the second place team plays the second place team in the National League. The final winner is decided by the higher placed team in the National League winning a playoff game. The runners-up meet in a playoff game for third place. Rules Each team plays each other team once and there are no double headers. If a game is not played, or teams are tied after regulation time, the game ends without the ball being put in play.

A novel gene encoding an immunoglobulin G-binding protein from rat bone marrow stem cells. A rat macrophage cell line, designated MST, was established from rat bone marrow stem cells (BMSC). Immunoglobulin (Ig) G-binding protein (IgG-BP) was detected in the MST cells as well as rat BMSC. IgG-BP was found to be a glycoprotein with a molecular mass of approximately 55-60 kDa. The cDNA for the IgG-BP was isolated using synthetic oligonucleotide primers specific for the extracellular domain of human IgG-BP. The cDNA contained an open reading frame of 1389 bp with an ORF of 1057 bp. The deduced protein of MST cell-derived IgG-BP consisted of 205 amino acid residues with a predicted molecular mass of 22.5 kDa. Two cysteine residues were found at positions 99 and 168, and a putative signal sequence was also located at the N-terminus. Antibodies against MST cell IgG-BP identified the 55-60 kDa protein as the IgG-BP antigen in rat BMSC and MST cells. Northern blot analysis revealed the existence of a 4.5 kb mRNA in the MST cells.
