Each level gives you the possibility to advance in time, and you can use the time, or to be able to save time. Each level has a different task. The first task is to open the first door. However, you must ensure that the time is not running out. If the time runs out, you lose the game. Also, before you open the door, you must pay the counter. : Texas agreed to pay Archer 32,200 for his part in the wrongful death, and attempted murder Russia agreed to pay for Ivan Milat's life in prison *Scraping through the files, Emma found photos of the inside of Milat's cell Remembering their first big scare just seven months ago, the trail of Emmett Murphy has just led to a notorious convicted rapist. The 79-year-old is being checked for signs of historical Parkinson's disease. It might be something that leads doctors to reveal he had taken anti-psychotic drugs in the 1970s. Filmmaker David Murphy discovered when his grandfather, Emmett Murphy, lived in the tiny town of Corriganville, New York, he had been stitched up by a gypsy woman after being attacked at the town's tavern. Murphy, 52, says he was shocked to find that his family had never told him about the episode, which the old man said took place when he was 12 years old. Following on from this, Murphy realised that the family had a family secret - brought on because of him. He was the alcoholic son of an alcoholic father and the attack left the child defensive and terrified of men. Emma Murphy decided to compile information on such hidden pasts, which at first she hoped would lead to a big breakthrough in her life. But ironically it started her down a path of discovery she had never imagined. Emma Murphy, a criminologist, has been researching for the past few months the life of the most notorious Australian fraudster who spent 30 years using his talents of deception and dishonesty to make a lot of money. She first found the name of an ex-girlfriend of the octogenarian fraudster, which led to more and more information. She first became interested in the case when she had to trace a car for the victim of a hit-and-run. Upon further research on Ireland's penal system, she became familiar with Ivan Milat. "I looked him up in the files and found he has an arrest warrant for the attempted murder of a Sydney policeman in 1989," she said. "He was arrested by a detective-sergeant who was from Sydney, 'Mel' Dowling. "Emma was looking for a car registration when she stumbled upon the skeleton case - read me in some kind of naked laying
