I have tried a bunch of things already such as return str.replace(search_string, ""); .replace(search_string, "") .replace(search_string, "") .replaceAll("search_string", "") .replaceAll("search_string", "") .replaceAll(search_string, "") .replaceAll(search_string, "") .replaceAll(search_string, "") .replaceAll(search_string, "") .replaceAll("search_string", "") .replaceAll("search_string", "") .replaceAll(search_string, "") .replaceAll(search_string, "") I don't mind having it assume you mean "invalid search_string" as an empty string, but it refuses to make any change. Could someone help me please? A: Mathematically speaking, re.sub(r'[^a-zA-Z 0-9]', '', string, flags=re.I) Explanation (1) [^a-zA-Z 0-9] matches any character but those given in the character classes. (2) $ matches the end of a string or line. (3) ^ is a negation character, not to be confused with the ^ at the end of a character class. (4) The final $ is to end the match. Link to the docs (Text): Link to the docs (Python): Link to my answer about a regex algorithm: A: You might try using a negative lookahead, and this will allow any text, not just alphanumeric characters: import re s = '''I have tried a bunch of things already such as return str.replace(search_string, ""); .replace(search_string, "") .replace(search_string, "") .replaceAll("search_string", "") .replaceAll("search_string", "") .replaceAll(search_string, "") .replaceAll(search d0c515b9f4

Getty / The World Wonders Encrypted archive files (.zip,.rar,.7z) Adobe PDF format files Microsoft Office files JPEG, GIF or BMP image format files Microsoft Word, Excel, PowerPoint or other Office-compatible files The archive file is password protected and you have the option to choose a password to open it. The password you chose is the one that protects the archive file after it is encrypted. The password you choose must be at least 6 characters long. It will not work if it is shorter than 6 characters. The password can be any characters that you want, including numbers, special characters or symbols. Keep in mind that a password is only needed to unlock the archive file. If you are not a password user, you can simply download the archive file without a password. If you are looking to automatically unlock an archive file without using a password, you may want to use the AutoUnlock software. It unlocks the archive file directly without a password. If you are seeking to protect the archive file that is in PDF, JPEG, GIF or BMP format, the following PDF/JPEG/GIF/BMP encryption software are your best choices. You can select the format that suits you the best according to your need. This software is an all-in-one PDF/JPEG/GIF/BMP encryption software. It is easy to use and it can automatically encrypt PDF, BMP, JPG and GIF files without any troublesome settings. With the added SSL certificate authentication (which is available for free), it is safe to use. Besides, it has a useful PDF search function and you can delete specific pages when you are using this feature.
