More particularly, this invention relates to a new oil soluble lubricating composition which contains a reaction product of a high molecular weight substituted phenol and a fatty acid ester. 2. Description of the Prior Art The use of oil soluble lubricating compositions, especially those that are based on reaction products of a high molecular weight phenol and a fatty acid ester, are known in the art as shown by U.S. Pat. No. 3,194,742 to Bloomer et al. However, the use of oil soluble lubricating compositions in high temperature applications has not been successful because these compositions tend to degrade by oxidative attack. For example, U.S. Pat. No. 3,194,742 to Bloomer et al. discloses that oil soluble reaction products of a phenol and a fatty acid ester are useful as lubricating oil additives. However, these oil soluble reaction products are used in a concentration of at least 5% by weight which is equivalent to at least 100 parts per million of lubricating oil.
