Prove that this is not a virus. Make sure to disable any addons and plugins before testing. By either disabling the addons and plugins or by uninstalling them. Kaspersky Labs removes this as soon as possible. Try to download it again after a few hours, and then remove any addons and plugins that had been activated before the infection. During the download, the malware installs some additional software on your computer. The malicious software can install itself as an add-on, startup, plug-in, extension, or helper app. Or you can see this in the registry; it is written as the following: 4d96e4c863334f7d15a4d110778888880cc59a9a30d71771efd1b5ade63e72400001f772e9e7a4bbb80e7622eabd9f2e98895b23515eb37db9a74b8e6369cd44e9a8ff00.7.exe, which is a fast version of an upload process to a remote server. During the upload process, it is used to transfer data to a remote server. The targeted server is in Russia, where the malicious code was developed. And the main responsible for this threat is the following piece of code:

h78b428bba7df968b9a8e2be3b3d7af324f50a68a992b07961abd5d9657b5ab6c00.exe, which is responsible for all the activities of the malware. The following table shows the list of the behaviors that the malware performs on the infected computer. There are also 2 running processes, as shown in the following:
