Yesterday, the club agreed to contribute $30,000 to a women's fund if the club could avoid facing an investigation into their funding practices. "It's not a fair request to ask the club to pay towards a fund whose allocation is based on gender." You'll want to stop reading right now, because this is some modern-day bullshit. The fund, which is an official Australian Sports Commission initiative, was established to help raise money for women to have mammograms and to provide support to those diagnosed with breast cancer. It started in 2009 as an "in-house" project at Victorian sports clubs.

Download: Create Font Studio 5 CrackA single payer system would be a tough sell in the current political climate in the USA. As it is, there are just over 40 million people in this country, all paying taxes, all eligible to receive health care at the federal and state levels. There are also over a hundred million people who are theoretically "uninsured" but who are only partially protected by the Emergency Medical Treatment and Active Labor Act (EMTALA). A single payer system is probably not going to be accomplished anytime soon, but there is a lot that can be done right now. Single payer means one single insurance plan, one single provider, one single set of administrators. For the current system, when a person is treated in a hospital, they are connected to the billing process of that hospital 79a2804d6b
